An information recording system that relies heavily on human inter-pretation (e. g. , handwriting, dosages). The rapid pace of medical advances, which overwhelms the ability of caregivers to keep up. The key to solving these problems is greater reliance on IT: to present the health care provider with appropriate patient information and knowl-edge resources at the point of clinical decision making; to record clinical concepts and events in standard, legible, and computable ways; and to check for potential errors in the decision-making process. Currently, most U. S. hospitals, outpatient settings, and other sites of care lack the 9 kind of health IT infrastructure that would support these solutions. Nationwide implementation of health information technology is the only demonstrated method of controlling costs in the long term without 10 decreasing the quality of health care delivered. In his January 2004 State of the Union Address, President George W. Bush highlighted the importance of IT in health care when he stated, By computerizing health records, we can avoid dangerous medical mistakes, reduce costs, and improve care. The goal of this PITAC report is to help accelerate the adoption of IT in the health care sector by providing guid-ance to overcome the principal technological barriers to moving in this revolutionizing direction. The Committees general findings are that: 9 Recent surveys...
