Mason and Slidell All the facts of this case have not yet been officially communicated. We will assume, however, that the English mail steam-packet Trent was visited beyond the distance of a marine league from the shore, and that the neutral waters within that distance were not used by the United States cruiser in watching her opportunity for the exercise of a belligerent right in the adjacent seas. Mr. Webster, the most distinguished American expounder of international law, in his official correspondence with Lord Ashburton, declared that a vessel on the high seas, beyond the distance of a marine league from the shore, is regarded as part of the territory of the nation to which she belongs. He also, in a subsequent letter to the same functionary, held the following language: The ocean is the sphere of the law of nations; and any merchant vessel on the seas is by that law under the protection of the laws of her own nation, and may claim immunity, unless in cases in which that law allows her to be entered or visited. The maritime right of visitation and search of neutral merchant vessels is a pure belligerent right, and can have no existence on the high seas during peace. It is allowed by the law of nations only in times of war, 1, for contraband, 2, for military persons, and 3, for despatches.
