Excerpt: . . . quantity, being confined almost entirely to the making of articles for special occasions, and for trousseaux of the wealthy, but now it has been developed until there are very many articles of household use in which the drawn-work is utilized to good advantage, . and the industry is on a sound business footing, having increased from a mere pittance for a few persons to a very respectable livelihood for hundreds, one might almost say thousands. It is a cottage industry, and has a quite noticeable effect in improving the condition of the homes of the workers. Could you see the homes, you would be surprised that such beautiful work could come from such crude, rough surroundings, with little attempt at anything lovely, beautiful or artistic in them. The dexterity of the nimble fingers of the expert is truly wonderful, and one feels that they...
