On the 24th September, 1862--the eve of the Jewish New Year 5623--Sir Moses Montefiore experienced the great sorrow of his life, in the death of his dear helpmate of fifty years. The Continental tours advised by the doctors had proved only of slight avail, and since the return from Rome in 1859 so visibly had her health declined that even these had had to be abandoned. Lady Montefiore spent the last year of her life alternately in London and Ramsgate, the object of the unceasing solicitude of her affectionate husband. During the summer of 1862, when the Jubilee of her married life was celebrated, a slight improvement in her health inspired her friends with hope. Providence, as one of her biographers sympathetically remarked, restored, before the final extinction of the lamp, a portion of the brightness which it once shed around. She was even able Jewish Chronicle, Oct. 3d, 1862. to take some carriage exercise with seeming benefit, and on the very day that she was attacked by the sickness which finally consigned her to the grave, arrangements had been made to take her to the...
