Excerpt: . . . few writers possess; among rising novelists Mr. Black, who is perhaps the strongest in every direction, is the only one who has yet shown that he has it. To find it in its fullness one must go back to Thackeray, between whom and Peacock it is not the only point of resemblance. The writer who made the graceful allusion to Maid Marian above quoted was probably attracted to that brilliant performance by some similarity in taste and power between its author and himself. Both loved to laugh at the foibles of their fellow-men, and in neither was that laughter ever bitter; both had a light touch for the ludicrous, and a soft for the tender side of humanity; both wrote songs with a pleasant grace which has not since been equalled. But while Peacocks fun was as a rule more rollicking than Thackerays, Thackerays satire...
